APCE series was founded by the leading separation and analytical scientists from the Asia-Pacific region. From the first symposium held in 1996 in Singapore, it soon developed into a premier international conference in the region. The current emphasis is on the relevant applications in genomics, proteomics, metabolomics, protein-drug quality control, food safety, environmental analysis, biotechnology, and medical analysis.

CECE started in 2004 as a friendly meeting of colleagues from Prague, Vienna, Bratislava, and Brno. Today, CECE aims at bringing in distinguished analytical scientists to present the newest trends in their research fields. Since 2012 a one-day section CECE Junior has been added to the program with oral presentations of young scientists.

ITP, inaugurated in Belgium in 1979, is one of the most recognized international meetings addressing the latest issues and innovations in all areas of electro- and liquid phase-separations techniques. Originally organized bi-annually in Europe, it became a yearly event in 2010 and is now switching between the continents.

IUPAC Special Symposia organized by the Chemistry and the Environment Division will cover the environment, health, and food safety impact of microplastics and PFASs in the environment, and several interdivision symposia.
